come of to the work of the control of the City and State fields were then unani mously approved, with great outhasiasm.

E. Delay into Smarth was called for. He was prepared to support all the Whig candidates: he was opposed to any movement for securing a part and defeating a portion of the Whig ticket. He was not ready to go St. Tamming. He said. prepared to support in the Wing chimants, in the was opposed to any novement for securing a part and defeating a portion of the Whig ticket. He was not ready to no St. Tammany. He said one of the most amounted questions was, whether we would send to the Senate a man who had been his while life in opposent of our party, he loped a 17-ling and not Daniel S. Dicklason, would be sent to Washington. He spoke of Washington Hout, and said his heart beat with sympathy for all men; whether trolden down in Hungary or starved in Ireand. He spoke of Mr. Hunt's introduction of the Irish Relief bill. [Cheers.] He alladed to George J. Cornell, and said he would receive such support as would put to the blush any one who tried to cit him from the ticket. And in the "Hural Districts" Washington Hunt would receive such a vote as would astonish any men who conspired in this City to defeat him. Mr. S. spoke of the value of victory in its influence on our leading nien. He was for the whole Whig telekt, for the whole Whig party, for gladdening the cars of Henry Ciay [here came the thunder of the night] with the news of a true Whig support to our New-York President. Mr. Smith said he had been requested to say a word to the voters of the Sixth District in lavor of James Brooks, who had discharged all his daties as a Whig. He referred to the prospective Senatorial Election, and asked if we were prepared to send a determined Loce Foce (Dickinson) instead of a Whig. He spoke briefly of State policy, and then referred to the established principles of the Whig party. He would sacrifice party to country it necessary; but he saw no such necessity—the Whig party was the party of the nation, and he saw no reason for opposing any portion of the ficket. The importance of the coming election was set forth, and Mr. S. closed with a strong appeal to come up to the work and election, and he en rocked within a Whig cradle, and he did even rocked within a Whig cradle, and he did even rocked within a Whig cradle, and he did even rocked within a Whig cra THEODORE E. TOMENSON said he was attached by early associations to the White party; he had been rocked within a Whig cradle, and he did not believe he would live long enough to follow it to its grave. He said the Whig party was conservative enough for order, radicel enough for reform, and patriotic enough for Union. [Cheers.] And to use the language of Webster, I believe that the Whig party can pass through the most fory ordeal without the smell of smoke upon its garments. He would allow every Whig to enjoy his own opinion. Comes he from the South, where has been brought up in havor of Slavery! I can he has been brought up in favor of Slavery? I can give him the hand of a Whig. [Cheers.] Comes give him the hand of a wring.

The from the free hills of New Hampshire, sayin that Slavery shall never curse the virgin soil of New England? I can clasp him to my breast and New England T can chasp thin to my breast and to my heart as a brother Whig. (Cheers loud and long.) Mr T, went on to favor toleration of opinion on the Siave question, and of submission to laws of Congress. But to the men who were crying peace, peace, he would say that Freedom herself was the daughter of agitation, by agitation for the constitution of the constit came the Great Republic; by agitation came that jewel California; by agitation freedom is ever won; for in the still dead night of Despotism the flowers of tyramy bloom. The slave is damb, but the free-man speaks. He deprecated all sectional names, all separation of the party in National or Union Whigs, and spoke of the position of Clay and Hunt. It has been said that the Government is a compromise, and that the Whig party is a compromise, would not desert from the army because a platon would not desert from the army because a platon or even a regiment had got out of place, but I would bring them into line and push on the united column to victory. He asked Whigs to send back their Representatives, Briggs and Brooks, for they had done their best. [Cheers.] He referred briefly to the City tichet, and spoke of the great importance of the voice of the metropolis in all the councils of the nation. Work, then, for all your candidates, and elect them; and then we will show you that a Whig victory is a I uion victory.

Mr. NELLY then introduced Mr. NELLY then introduced Mr. NOBLE, formerly of Chautanque County. He had heard much eloquence, but could give none; but if old reliable Whig doctrines were wented, he could give them. He deprecated wanted, he could give them. He deprecated sectional action and sectional feelings, and woke up the old fire of 1840, by naming some of the watchwords of that day. He thought these reminiscences were good for the present time. He referred to the vote of the Southern Whies on the admission of the Southern Whies on the admission of Texas, when only three Whise from Slave States were found against the North the admission of Texus, when only large Whits from Slave States were iound against the North. He spoke of the great principle of Protection to American Industry, (Cheers, as a question on which we were all agreed. He was not willing to stand up against the Whig candidates, because he did not agree in all things with them. Is there any substantial difference between our principles sow and those in 1840-44? No, I say. He thought we should all unite on the cardinal principles. But men will lug in this old Slavery question. Will we never hear the last of it? But all this was secondary. The question is, are you in favor of the cardinal principles of Whig policy? ["Yes," "yes."] I knew you would say so. [Laughter, I He returned to the great principle of Protection, and at the universal interests of all in its maintenance. Mr. N. again referred to the Slavery question, and thought it was of very little consequence as compared with the permanency of the party. Do you believe your candidates are true old fashioned Whigs? If so, tote for them; vote the straight ticket,—that's the only way to bent Loco-Poess. For myself, I will run with the old machine a little longer,—I see seiffed with it. [Laughter.] As to those the only way to bent Loco Folos. For myself, I will run with the old machine a little longer,—I tm satisfied with it. Mr. CARROL being challed, fose, and as it was late, moved an adjournment.

Mr. Kelly proposed that the meeting adjourn, with three cheers for Hamilton Fish. These were given with a will: then three for the whole licket, three for each of the leading candidates, and three for the Whig party, and while the band played an air the people dispersed.

A Card-The Irving House,

To the Editors of the Tribune: IRVING House, November 1, 1850. GENTS: I avail myself through the medium of your journal, to inform my numerous friends and he public at large, that the liberal manner in which I have been patronized by them, has determined me not to increase the terms which I established when I opened the Irving House, as with my present business it is not necessary that I should do so.

The terms, will therefore, continue to be two foliars per day for the usual accommodations. Your obedient servant, D. D. HOWARD.

Finally, on Tuesday last, the sea was favor able for the first time in several weeks, and at daylight on Wednesday morning operations commenced. Mr. Johnson had previously pro-cured a pair of powerful canthooks, weighing about 500 pounds. These were placed around the case by Mr. Whipple, who descended in his submarine armor. By arranging a lever on the deck of the yacht a heavy purchase was obtained, and through the united strength of twenty men, the books were firmly closed around the case and the smoved and the sand washed off. The only gury it had sustained was the loss of part of the ght ama, but as the fracture is concealed by the drapery, the loss can readily be replaced. With this exception the statue is as perfect as when the continuing quiet up to that time. Immediately afterward, a heavy swell arose, but it was too late for the jealous sea to reclaim its spoil.

The Twilight, with its memorable freight, and the Revenue Cutter Morris will probably reach this City to-morrow. Meanwhile, we would suggest to the agents in this City of those citizens of Charleston by whom the statue was ordered, that it be placed on exhibition before leaving for its destined pedestal. As a work of art, no less than on account of the remarkable circumstances attending its transmission, there are few of our citizens who would fail to visit it. The proceeds, or a liberal portion of them, might properly be applied to the remuneration of the men, who, since the 15th of August last, have been laboring so faithfully and perseveringly for its recovery. Mr. Johnson, we understand, has spent about a thousand do lars in the undertaking, and to his energy slone we are indebted for this great work, now doubly valuable from its baptism in the great deep. The history of the shipwreck should be carved on the pedestal of the statue, in the temple to be erected in Charleston, as an appropriate and enduring acknowledgement of his zeal.

brilliant audience we have ever seen in this City.

I A paragraph appeared seme time since in The Tribune, under the head of Brooklyn Items, stating that the present population of the Fourth Ward in Brooklyn was between 11,000 and 12,000. Some of our cotemporaries borrowed it under the impression that it related to the Fourth Ward in this City, and thus gave currency to a very erroneous statement concerning the population of that Ward. We learn from Jirch Bull, Esq. one of the Assistant Marshals employed in taking the census in the Fourth Ward, that its inhabitants will probably number not less than 25,000, and perhaps will exceed that estimate. The census will soon be completed.

THE CORN CROP.-Last year our farmers were n ecstacies over their ordinary good crop of corn it was considered the best that had ever been produced in Northern Indiana. This year's crop, lowever, is better than that of last year, and a great many more acres were planted. It is a re-markable fact, that since 1835 there has not been an entire failure of the corn crop in this County.

THE CASAL -We are informed there are 400 boats this side of Syracuse, bound East, which are detained by the breaks. The Collector thinks he will be able to clear boats for the West this morning.

Things in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Thursday, Oct. 31. The residence of Dr. William S. Haines, Rosi-dent Physician of the Almshouse, situate near this city, was entered by burglars last night and rob-bed of a number of articles. Every member of the family was at the time up, tending on a sick ckild, yet the daring rascals escaped undetected. Police officer Slaven, who was shot some time roller officer Staven, who was shot some time since in Moyamensing, is yet alive this afternoon, but it is utterly impossible for him to survive long. Our most eminent physicians consider his case hopeless. Capt. McSlea, the other officer who. was shot at the same time, still remains very low.

On the outskirts of Moyamensing this morning at an early hour, several market wagons were at-tacked, robbed, and their owners shamefully abused.

The Mechanics and Workingmen of our County hold a Mass Meeting this evening, for the purpose of considering matters of interest to this class of our fellow-citizens.

A call for a great Union meeting, similar to that held at Castle Garden in your city, is circulating in Philadelphia.
